

Carolina Trace Instructional Facility and Programs

The driving range has plenty of grass teeing space and several targets. There is a separate area for the student who is taking a lesson. The lesson tee gives both the student and the professional a private place to accomplish their goals. We have plenty of teaching aides as the use of video to help the student make the necessary changes to improve their game. The video unit has two VCR's so the student can have a copy of the lesson to take home. In the back of the driving range there are several mats to use if the teeing area is wet. Also, there is a mat that can be used to simulate each possible lie on the course.

Just to the right of the range is our short game facility. A lot of thought went into the design of this area. Each possible lie that you could see can be practiced in the short game area. Uphill, downhill, and side hill lies all can be recreated so you will be prepared to face them on the golf course. The bunkers are set up so six people can practice at the same time and not be in danger of an errant shot. The bunker on the left can handle long fairway bunker shots as well as greenside shots. All our short game schools are taught at this location and easily accommodate up to six students.

We offer a variety of programs to help make your golf game better. In the spring and fall the members have a free clinic. All of the professional staff are available to work on all aspects of the game. Private lessons can be taken as you need them or for the serious player we offer a lesson package. The package is buy five lessons and one is free, a savings of nearly $30.00. Weekly clinic, short game schools, psychology of playing, understand the golf swing, on course sessions, and even an exercise program have been available for members on a regular basis. Each program is targeted for a different aspect of the game to improve and is well attended.

In summary, the professional staff makes the commitment to represent the club in a professional manner, to promote the game of golf and provide excellent service to the members and their guest. The pro shop will display the best in equipment and apparel. The entire staff will be energetic, polite, and qualified to execute the day-to-day procedure. We will ensure a first class tournament operation and provide the very best in teaching and coaching the game of golf.
